CULTURAL DIRECTIONS FOR AZALEA INDICA AND CAMELLIA JAPONICA.

These plants will not flower well in dense shade, but partial shade is all right. Shade has some advantage as a protection from cold. Full sunshine suits them well and they grow and blossom to perfection.

Most plants are set out between October and June, but if carefully handled they may be planted any month.

The earth in which they are planted must be acid and bountifully supplied with vegetable matter, preferably secured from peat, muck, or rotted leaves. Such materials help to maintain an even supply of moisture, besides supplying the kind of plant food they like. Lime or an alkaline soil is poisonous to them. If lime is present, it must be removed before planting. This is best done by digging out soil and filling in with the right sort of materials. Use mold and leaves from beneath oak and other hardwood trees.

The drainage must be good and the bed must be located where all surplus rainfall will run off quickly. These plants delight in a moist soil but they will not tolerate a water-saturated soil-condition. Even a few days of it will often injure them beyond recovery.

Do not hesitate at any time to write or call on us about the condition of your plants.
